Kids Teaching Kids at The Patch

Kids Teaching Kids is a school-based education model that inspires young people to learn and care for their local environment. It uses local environmental issues as a theme for learning. The Kids Teaching Kids Learning Model uses “peer teaching and learning” practices where the traditional role of teacher and student change. The teachers become the facilitators and the students are empowered to take responsibility for their own learning. It is a model where students learn with their head, heart and hand.

On August 30, from 10 – 2.30, The Patch Primary School shall host a KTK event for 9 local schools. During the day a variety of student presenters shall introduce issues and activities that empower others to take action on behalf of the environment.

Our 20 student presenters are some of our school EarthKeepers from years 5/6. They shall be sharing some of the ideas and themes from their EarthKeeper camp experience and have been busy making resources and developing their presentation.

The Patch PS has been identified as a signature event for this day and will receive t-shirts, hats, publicity and support to make the day a special one.

For more information about Kids Teaching Kids, visit www.kidsteachingkids.com.au

Stay tuned for photos and information closer to the day.

Michelle